SPECIAL SANTA FOR HEARING IMPAIRED

Santa and Mrs. Claus use sign language to share a happy moment as they prepare to greet deaf and hearing impaired youngsters at Pacific Northwest Bell's special holiday program for children with hearing disabilities.

Parents and teachers are invited to bring children for a visit with the jolly old man.

This is the second year PNB has presented this unusual program which enables deaf children to "talk" with Santa using sign language.

Ray Monson, who plays Santa, and Jan Holler, who acts as Mrs. Claus, are PNB employees who also are deaf.

WALT DISNEY PRODUCTIONS TO EXPAND OPPORTUNITIES FOR MINORITIES IN MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and Walt Disney Productions jointly announced today that they have signed a statement of understanding designed to enhance opportunities for Blacks and other minority groups in the motion picture industry.

The declaration signed by Benjamin Hooks, Executive Director of the NAACP, and Card Walker, Chairman of Walt Disney Production, is aimed at continuing the expansion of opportunities available through Disney for Blacks and other minorities.

It involves a "mutual moral commitment" on the part of both organizations to work together towards meeting aims and objectives.

The historic declaration of fair share principles signed by Disney and the NAACP is yet another expression of Disney's continuing support of these values. This far-reaching commitment is expected to provide greater opportunities to Black and other minority artists in the Hollywood creative community. The NAACP looks forward to a continuing cooperative relationship with Disney, working to achieve the goals stated in the declaration. Also, the NAACP calls upon all of the other studios in Hollywood's creative community to join with it in making similar such commitments."

Disney said it will exert efforts to accomplish certain goals in the entertainment industry for Blacks in the following areas:

* Expansion of management and employment opportunities
* Increased procurement of goods and services from Black enterprises
* Increased relationships with Black banks and insurance companies
* Charitable contributions
* Utilization of Black-owned media agencies
* Black representation on the Board of Directors
* Increased participation of Blacks in the creation, production and performance in films and television.

Deaf children will have an opportunity to "talk" to a special Santa Claus December 9 and 10 at the Bell PhoneCenter in Tacoma Mall.

Pacific Northwest Bell is sponsoring the unusual program to enable hearing impaired youngsters to "tell" Santa their Christmas wishes, using sign language.

The Santa for the deaf will be at the Bell PhoneCenter location from 1 pm to 7 pm. PNB also has arranged a display of telecommunications products for people with special needs.

Ray Monson, Pacific Northwest Bell drafting clerk, is beginning his second season as Santa in PNB's special holiday program for deaf and hearing impaired youngsters.

Monson has taken an active part in the deaf community. He does volunteer work at the Community Center for the Deaf and attends the Calvary Temple Church of the Deaf where he serves on the board.

Black Press Remains Handcuffed

The Black press remains handcuffed due to the economic racism practiced by many white businesses and the firms which handle their advertising contracts.

Here's the twisted logic that often is presented to the Black press. White advertising executives contend they can reach more Blacks by placing ads in the white press, which has considerable Black readership, and that putting ads in the Black press is "a waste of money."

However, The contention about Blacks reading white newspapers in large numbers all but disappears when major metropolitan city editors are pressed to put more Black reporters on their payrolls, or urged to carry more relevant Black news. They then insist that few Blacks consistently read daily newspapers, and that advertisers are really interested primarily in white suburban readers who have more money to spend on the product advertised.

White advertising executives tell Black newspaper publishers that more ads will be placed in Black newspapers as soon as the "quality" of these newspapers improves, ignoring the fact that the quality will remain the same without more ads which generate revenues to pay for the salaries of professionals and rising production costs.

The present plight of the Jackson Advocate, the oldest Black newspaper in Jackson, Mississippi, dramatizes the historical relationship of the Black press to the white community. Recently, two members of the Ku Klux Klan fired bullets through the front windows of the newspaper, which is one of the strongest voices against racial injustice in Mississippi and elsewhere.

In response, the local NAACP branch has set in motion a Black consumer boycott against those white businesses that have decided to stop running ads in the newspaper.

The above efforts by the Jackson Advocate and the local NAACP are part of the glorious tradition of these organizations in the fight for Black liberation.

Bush in African nations

Lagos, Nigeria -- Vice President George Bush concluded talks with Nigerian leaders, saying the United States had been criticized "frankly but constructively" for its links with South Africa.

Bush, who visited the Cape Verde Islands and Senegal, left Lagos for Moscow, where he led the U.S. delegation at the funeral of Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev. He resumed his tour in Zimbabwe after the funeral.

"Criticism has been very direct and frank and I have heard it in three places," Bush told reporters after two hours of talks with Nigerian Vice President Alex Ekwueme.

"I understand the depth of motivation that each government has spoken with. Governments have been frankly critical but constructively critical about their perceptions of our policy."

Black African nations are known to be highly suspicious of America's "constructive engagement" with Pretoria, viewing it as an impediment to progress in the Namibian peace talks and the eventual dismantling of apartheid in white-ruled South Africa.

But analysts said such disagreements were not unexpected and reflected long-standing policy differences between Black Africa and the Reagan Administration.

Ekwueme reaffirmed his country's call for mandatory sanctions against South Africa as the "shortest and quickest way to reassess the apartheid policy."

In a joint communique, the two vice presidents called the talks "cordial and understanding" and said it was "vitally important to work urgently for peace and regional security in southern Africa."

They also said they wanted the "rapid decolonization and independence of Namibia (now administered by South Africa) on the basis of democratic principle and the will of the people."

But Ekwueme rejected making the withdrawal of some 20,000 Cuban troops from Angola a condition of a Namibia peace package, as South Africa has insisted.

The United States wants to see the Cubans withdraw at the same time a Namibian peace package is implemented and has been trying to negotiate a "parallel" agreement on such a pullout with Marxist Angola.

2nd PLACE AWARD GOES TO NORMA KIRKWOOD IN PARIS FRANCE

Norma Kirkwood, stylist at Parker's Magix Styling Salon, recently won second place in a World Stylist competition at "The Peace de l' Opera" in Paris, France.

Norma made finals by submitting a sketch of her own design (unlike others who submitted photographs) to the Paris Studio of Hair Design & Fashion.

She was flown to Paris, all expenses paid, to compete with 25 other finalists from the Western world.

Stylists' models were selected at random, so stylists did not have the benefit of seeing their model before the actual competition.

Norma's model did not understand English and Norma does not understand French.

For the competition, stylists were limited to using comb, brush, scissors and blowdryer only.

Contestants were judged on their blowdrying, curling and styling for the overall look of the model.

Norma has been in the field for approximately 6 yrs. She is known as the "Hair Doctor". She has taught advance classes at Clover Park Vocational School. Norma has also taught classes in salons across the state.

ROMANS 6.

WHAT shall we say then? Shall we continue in sin, that grace may abound?

God forbid. How shall we, that are dead to sin, live any longer therein?

Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death?

Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life.

For we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection:

Knowing this, that our old man is crucified with him, that the body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin.

For he that is dead is freed from sin.

Now if we be dead with Christ, we believe that we shall also live with him:

Knowing that Christ being raised from the dead dieth no more; death hath no more dominion over him.

For in that he died, he died unto sin once but in that he liveth, he liveth unto God.

Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body, that ye should obey it in the lusts thereof.

Neither yield ye your members as instruments of unrighteousness unto sin: but yield yourselves unto God, as those that are alive from the dead, and your members as instruments of righteousness unto God.

For sin shall not have dominion over you: for ye are not under the law, but under grace.

We welcome news of your church and civic events.

Census sees small rise in Black population

The percentage of the nation's population that is Black would rise from the current 11.9 percent to 13.4 percent in 2000 and 16.8 percent by 2050, the Census Bureau has predicted.

According to the report, the experts who studied mid-range projections on birth, death and immigration trends said the nation's population -- now estimated at 232 million -- could rise to 268 million by the year 2000, and then reach the point of "zero population growth" in another 50 years.

The report said the middle projections show the annual rate of population growth falling from 0.9 percent in 1981 to 0.6 percent in 2000 and to virtually nothing in 2050.

Deaths would start exceeding births in the United States by 2035, but net immigration would keep the population total rising until 2050, said authors Gregory Spencer and John Long in an advance version of their study, which is due out next year in complete form.

They said the projections assume a fertility rate rising slightly and then falling by 2050 to 1.9 births per woman, still above the existing 1.83 figure; increased life expectancy, from 78.3 years now to 83.6 years in 2050 for women, and from 70.7 years to 75.1 years for men; and net immigration constant at 450,000 a year.

Spencer and Long warned, however, "the actual future course of population size could vary considerably" from their projections because variations in population factors could cause wide shifts in the population.

21st century near. Are you ready?

We are only 17 years away from the 21st century. That might not appear significant at first glance. But the implications are enormous.

The world will change dramatically over the next several decades. Indeed, if many of us now living, were to find a way back, we might not recognize our own planet.

Technology will be king. Those jobs we do today will become obsolete in a few short years. There is a silent revolution taking place in America, for example, we will produce very few machines as we now know them. Those tasks will be achieved by Third World nations. Third World countries now make up a larger market for American goods than all of Europe and Japan combined.

America, in the not too distant future, will be deeply involved in handling information on a global basis. Futurists tell us that some 80 percent of our work force will be involved in processing information through computers and other highly technical mechanisms.

It is imperative, then, that America's youth -- and Black youth in particular -- move toward science and technology if they are to play a meaningful role in the future of the world.

Some of the dancing has got to stop. Some of the ball playing must be placed on hold. Much of the fun and games, which take up the time of too many of our youth, must end. We face a highly competitive future. We must be ready for it.

Those who are prepared to meet them will survive and prosper. Others will be found on unemployment or public assistance lines, mirroring the conditions we face today.

Much of the fault will be our own because we refused to prepare for the future. The future will require new skills, new capabilities and a far greater understanding of what makes the world move in the most modern of times in human history.

PROGRAM ON NAMU, THE KILLER WHALE TO BE PRESENTED

Ted Griffin, whose unprecedented experiences have involved the capture, befriending and riding of the now famous killer whale, Namu, will present a movie - lecture program for Snake Lake Nature Center Fri. Dec. 3.

The program will be given at the Oakland Community Center, Center & Gunnison Sts. from 7-9 pm A $2 per adult and $1 for those under 18 donation fee is asked. Group rates are available to school and civic groups of 6 or more.

Reservations must be made a week in advance by calling the Nature Center at 591-5939, because a minimum audience is required.

CIVIL RIGHTS SHORTS

Most women will effectively be barred from 76 percent of Army jobs by tougher physical strength tests, and 23 additional job categories were closed to women because of possible combat dangers. The Defense Department Authorization Act of 1983, signed September 8, permits disposable military retirement pay to be considered as property in divorce settlements thus reversing a Supreme Court finding (McCarty v. McCarty) which held that a court could not split nondisability pay as community property in a divorce proceeding.

The National Organization for Women announced August 27 that it would fund candidates who supported the proposed equal rights amendment and would begin raising $3 million for that purpose, according to a New York Times report.... President Reagan named Dee Jepsen, an unsalaried assistant in her husband's (Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa) office, as his chief liaison on women's issues, according to a Washington Post report.....All but four of the 72 judges President Reagan has appointed to Federal trial and appellate courts by mid-August were white men, according to a September 10 Washington Post re-

ASPIRIN NOT ADVISED FOR A CHILD's FLU

Now that flu season is here the Food and Drug Administration has issued new warnings to parents not to give their children aspirin to treat influenza or chicken pox.

Aspirin has been linked to a rare but very serious disease, called Reye Syndrome. Reye Syndrome is an acute illness that usually strikes just as a child is recovering from flu or chicken pox.

The symptoms are sudden vomiting, violent headaches, unusual or combative behavior. It is most common in children under age 16. Reye Syndrome requires immediate medical care and usually hospitalization.

In the near future, aspirin and aspirin-containing products may carry warning labels, according to Olga Fuste', Washington State University's Pierce County Extension Agent.

Parents should check with their physician and pharmacist before giving children pain or headache medication, says Olga Fuste'. Most physicians usually recommend a product containing acetominophin. This is another pain medication. Like other medications this should not be used in excess.

Cooperative Extension programs and information are available to all citizens of Pierce County without discrimination.

LOTTERY WINNINGS TAXABLE STATES IRS

The Internal Revenue Service is receiving many questions about the taxability of the new Washington State lottery winnings.

Washington taxpayers are reminded that all winnings from the State lottery must be reported as income on their Federal income tax returns.

Michael J. Quinn, Seattle IRS District Director, stated that taxpayers should report all winnings on Form 1040 as "Other income." The cost of the lottery tickets may be deducted to the extent of the winnings if a taxpayer is itemizing deductions on Schedule A. Losing lottery tickets should be keep to substantiate the lottery losses.
